RECENT FIELD TRIPS

The fog was intermittent, the day reasonably warm, the trail along the east shore of Strawberry Point very muddy and puddly after extensive rains. A sizeable crowd of about 50 members blossomed forth to visit the National Audubon Richardson Bay Wildlife Refuge. The morning was spent on the lagoon shores near Richardson Bay Bridge, where green-winged teal and one white pelican were noteworthy; from there over the hill to Strawberry Point, where the walk out to the farthest limits rewarded us with seven Black Turnstones, several Spotted Sandpipers and a large herd of harbor seals sunning on the dredged-up mud banks out from the shore. Fortunately, although the mud-bank now has an automobile road on it, the large number of Great Blue Herons living there have not left yet. On the way over the hill by car caravan, a few of us were lucky enough to get a wonderful view of a Red-shouldered Hawk, which has never been recorded on this trip before. Lunch was enjoyed on the beautiful terrace of the Dickey House, with our hosts, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Larson, Jr. Mr. Larson, the Audubon warden, gave an interesting talk on the history of the establishment of this sanctuary. He, also, told us that this year the migratory waterfowl were quite late in arriving and their numbers were down from the previous years.

After lunch some of the group went on to Belvedere Island to try for closer views of the dense rafts of ducks, cormorants, scoters, and grebes. Common loons were diving in very close. Amongst our guests we had a very distinguished gentleman, Sir Geoffrey Furlongs, who for thirty years had been in the foreign service of Great Britain, in the near East and Africa, notably as ambassador — his last post being in Egypt. He is also a renowned birder with experience in these countries and on the continent of Europe. Now retired, he was on a lecture tour and in San Francisco to address the World Affairs Council.

A total of 64 species of birds were seen.

—Elizabeth Lennon, Leader & Historian

On March 31, some forty members and friends of the Golden Gate Audubon Society travelled to the Farallon Islands and back aboard Privateer II to see pelagic birds and mammals. In the absence of migrating phalaropes or Sabine's Gulls, and with only a couple of sightings of individual Sooty Shearwaters, the trip out was comparatively uneventful. At the island itself, thousands of Western Gulls, Common Murres, and cormorants, and hundreds of Pigeon Guillemots circled about the nesting areas. A few Tufted Puffins flew in and out of the rock stacks. Off the island, a few Rhinoceros Auklets, a number of Surf Scoters, and several tightly bunched groups of Eared and Horned Grebes were observed. Most of the grebes were well into breeding plumage. On the return trip, when Privateer circled southward nearer the sea lanes, seven Black-footed Albatross came to join the gulls feeding behind the boat.

BILLS FOR HIKING AND RIDING TRAILS

Assembly Bill 1877 and Senate Bill 1004 were recently introduced to speed development of the lagging statewide riding and hiking trails program. The bills would make the riding and hiking trails a part of the state park system and give the State Department of Parks and Recreation the right of eminent domain, permitting condemnation proceedings on land needed to complete the trail system. If you support this program write to your assemblyman and state senator and urge them to pass these bills.
